FALLEN OFFICERS HONOURED ON NATIONAL POLICE REMEMBRANCE DAY

Member for Albury, Greg Aplin has encouraged the community to pause and reflect on the sacrifice of our fallen NSW Police officers this Friday 29 September for National Police Remembrance Day.

Mr Aplin said special ceremonies will be held across the State.

“Every year we gather to remember the men and women who dedicated their lives to the safety of others,” Mr Aplin said.

“Our police officers go to work day in and day out not knowing what they will confront in the line of duty, or whether they will return home safely at the end of their shift.

“On this day, it is important that we acknowledge those officers who have lost their lives as a result of their policing career. But we must also pay our respects to our local men and women in blue who work tirelessly to keep us safe from harm every day.”

Minister for Police Troy Grant said the community should never take the contribution of our police for granted.

“If you see an officer out on the beat, please stop them and thank them for the work they do,” Mr Grant said.

“On National Police Remembrance Day, I stand with the entire police family to honour those who made the ultimate sacrifice in the name of community safety.”

The Albury Wodonga ceremony will this year be conducted at Sacred Heart Catholic Church, 283 Beechworth Road, Wodonga at 10.30am on Friday 29 September and members of the public are welcome to attend.
